Appropriate comments:

>Sitting in plastic bins in my garage like it is now because it's impossible to sell it for anywhere near it's value in money and time invested.

>I've asked my wife and my children to get in touch with RMS to see if anyone would be interested in my collection.

>It's already willed to RMS to auction off for the Society.

>I collect only one small town where I live and it will go to our Library.

>Donate it to local club is anyone is still alive!

>I'd really like to know that.....there are no hobby related clubs, etc., near me and my family isn't interested. I do worry.

>Good question since I can't figure out what to do with it...

I guess my kids will have to deal with it-

>If I die before my wife, I believe she will put it in the trash. I need to find some way to pass it on in the near future.

>Instructions that I have left for my collection: Send all of it to the grab table at the next RMS Convention. Those who attend that convention will find VERY good stuff on the freebie table. This way, the covers go to people who will appreciate them, rather than my kids who have no interest in collecting anything and see no value in anything collectible.

Another great 2018 conv. display>>
