

Service Stations

Not only do they not make Service Station covers anymore, but they don't even have Service Stations like this anymore.

When you see covers like this, you remember the service in Service Stations—attendants pumping gas, checking the water and oil, cleaning the windshield (Well, we old-timers remember that, at least) [My God! I'm an old-timer!] Now, there's no service, and most gas stations are mini-marts.

Because so many of these covers were issued by the big oil companies, there are some really long series here, where the back panel carries a stock graphic, and the front panel carries the individual station identification. There are also a significant number of sets; also Girlies, Mileage, and other conjunctives. Not surprisingly, this is not a category where Fancies abound.

Lots of covers here. Greg Lund had 59 albums of Service Stations as of October 2013!
