

RMS INSTA-POLL

“Do you put covers back to back in plastic pages?”

[Thanks to Regina Hardin for this one]

Yes:	73	Comments:
No:	24	-Yes, if nothing is on the inside of the cover -Yes, with blank inserts between them.
Both:	25	-Usually.....But not Railroads and other categories that have vital information on inside. -Yes, plastic pages cost too much to use only one side!
Don't use:	4	-If they are old covers with nothing on the inside I do. -Depends, I put covers back to back if there is nothing on the inside that I want to show. -I do both single and back to back. It depends on amount of matches, quality and pages on hand.

-I find plastic pages expensive and I use them only for special covers ie: Worlds Fairs, or Railroads with schedules on the other side.

-No, but only because space is not an issue for me. I'm just getting started in the hobby and covers are so hard to come by. At this rate I could go single cover for years and years!!

-Full books don't work very well that way. Both sides often contribute to your enjoyment of collecting a full book.

Almost all of the 'yes's' included exceptions for special covers.*

I noted that people responding 'no' generally had small collections or no problem with buying lots and lots of plastic pages*
